

I want to voice my concern about the possibility of Low Power FM broadcasters replacing stations such as K-LOVE. There are so few Christian radio stations, and those few that do exist serve the public interest in a way that is irreplaceable. With the vast amount of trash allowed to exist on the radio, with their profanity and sexual explicitness, it is refreshing that at least a few stations exist that offer "positive and encouraging" messages that all of us need to have the opportunity to choose. To allow K-LOVE and other Christian stations to be replaced by more of the same trash would not only be a tragedy, it would send a clear signal that the FCC is not acting in the public interest.
